Discussion Questions

In Matthew 13:36–43, Jesus gives a rare and direct explanation of a parable. What stands out to you most in His interpretation?

Jesus identifies Himself as “the Son of Man” and the Sower of good seed. What does this title mean, and how does it shape your understanding of His mission?

What does it practically look like to “grow as wheat” in the places God has planted you, in your home, workplace, or community?

Have you ever been tempted to focus more on identifying or removing “weeds” than on producing fruit? Why do you think Jesus warns against that?

What kinds of speech, actions, or desires in us might Jesus describe as “hellish” (cf. Matthew 5:22, 18:9; James 3:6)? How can we invite God to remove these?

Why do you think Jesus delays judgment until the end? What does this say about His character?

How can we trust God’s timing when we see evil seemingly growing unchecked in the world, or even in our own hearts?

The parable reminds us that we can’t always see the difference between wheat and weeds from the outside. What does that mean for how we relate to others, especially those we disagree with?

How does the promise that “the righteous will shine like the sun” give you hope? How might it change your view of your current season of life?

Family Discussion

Was it hard to tell the difference between the watermelon and the citron melon from the outside? How is that like people and their hearts?

Read 1 Samuel 16:7 together: How does it make you feel knowing that Jesus can see what's inside us, even when other people can't?

Jesus says the wheat and weeds grow together until the harvest. Why do you think God wants us to focus on growing wheat instead of trying to pull up weeds?

What does it mean to grow like wheat for God's kingdom? Brainstorm some ways we can grow love, kindness, or truth like good fruit or healthy wheat.

Pray for Missions – Islamic Republic of Iran

Largest Religion – Muslim, 98.6%      Population – 92.4 million

Percent Evangelical – 0.2%      Area – 636,400 square miles

Religious minorities such as Jews, Zoroastrians, and Assyrian and Armenian Christians are recognized by the constitution, but little of consequence can occur without the approval of the Mullahs. Repression, corruption, and human rights abuses are frequent. However, massive numbers of Iranians have come to Jesus in recent years! From only 500 Muslim-background believers in 1979, some estimates suggest that number is greater than 1 million in Iran today.
